SALEM LEGION POST PREPARES FOR BONUS RUSH

Post Service Officer, To Set Up Organization

Estimates More Than 500 Vets In Local Area Will Collect

Charles H. Carey post No. 56, Salem Legion, today set in motion machinery for assisting ex-servicemen of Salem and district to collect the bonus passed by both houses of congress, vetoed by President and then passed again by the house over Roosevelt's veto yesterday.

The senate meets Monday to take action on the legislation, with the prospect of following the example of the house.

Sends For Applications

Post Service Officer of Salem Legion post, today announced that the post has dispatched to the state headquarters for applications and other necessary for the veterans' bonus.

Upon the arrival of the necessary forms, the Legion will set up an organization at the post rooms to handle claims for the veterans' bonus which will make a public announcement when the forms arrive.

It is estimated that between 500 and 600 former service men in the Salem area are eligible for the bonus according to John C. Litty, assistant of the local post, who is operating with Service Officer Smith in preparations for the bonus rush.

State Legion officers estimate that county veterans will collect approximately $1,523,361. The payment in Salem will run well over the $30,000 mark, it is believed.

AWAIT FINAL ACTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—With the senate preparing to write the $2,991,000,000 bonus bill into law today, legislators divided sharply on the question whether new taxes will be sought to finance it.

The speculation on that score at the time the bill was passed, the baby payment measure yesterday President Roosevelt's veto.

Some legislators thought the president might ask new levies; others believed they might be postponed until next year; many expressed the feeling that congress will not mood to vote taxes in a campaign year.

The money that the treasury department is to pay off veterans who served in the world war was estimated by administration officials at not more than $1,000,000,000. Many veterans, it is said, will hold their bonds to take advantage of 3 per cent interest offered.

End of Dispute Seen

It was conceded on all sides that a bitter and prolonged post-war recovery over payment of the bonus would end Monday with the state vote.

Senate leaders forecast the bill would pass by a wide margin over the two-thirds required by the Constitution, with not more than 20 votes at the outside to sustain the veto.

The belief of many legislators that no new taxes will be asked at session, except perhaps to regulate the invalidated processing of veterans, was strengthened by the absence of any explicit demand for levies in the President's veto message.

Explosion Kills Eight Miners

Monarch mine

Eight miners lost their lives in the Monarch coal mine at Louisville, Colo., above, when a terrific explosion was set off as gas was ignited by flames which licked through the protective walls shutting off an abandoned section of the mine which had been burning for years.

Jim Ferguson and His Smile Missed At Fire Station

Jim Ferguson's ever-smiling face is missed at the fire station these days.

Ferguson, who will be 84 Monday, has been bedfast for the last six weeks at the home of his son, James, on Franklin st., with whom he resides.

But he won't be forgotten on his birthday. Firemen and his buddies at the station, many old timers of the city, are sending him birthday greetings.

Among the veterans who visit the fire station, playing cards and checkers, Ferguson is the only one who has been bedfast for the winter. However, the cold weather has kept many of his cronies indoors.

He is missed a lot because, as Fire Chief Vincent Malloy puts it, "there's always a smile on his face."

No matter how vociferous the "kidding", it's hard to take that smile away, his chums confide.

CONVICT "J.P." AT PITTSBURGH

Peace Officer Gets Life For Murder of His Wife, July 10

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—After more than 10 hours' deliberation, a jury convicted Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood of murder today in the slaying of his wife, Martha, last July 10.

The jurors' verdict recommended life imprisonment. They informed Judge William H. McNaughton they had reached an agreement after having been locked up for the night.

Mrs. Westwood, 38-year-old mother of three children, died from three bullet wounds early in the morning of July 10.

The state asked death for Westwood, claimed he killed his wife of 22 years because he no longer loved her.

The main issue before the jury was the squire's alibi he was in Eddie Peyton's night club at the hour of the slaying and the statement of Mrs. Sophie Schatz, a neighbor, that she saw Westwood leaving the scene a few moments after the shots were fired.

William D. Coleman, Westwood's attorney, described the dapper justice of the peace as cheerful and expecting an acquittal. The three Westwood children, Bertha, 20, Martha, 12, and Jimmy, 7, visited their father in the jail for a few minutes.

Police Map Shows Traffic Accidents

A map of the city, dotted at present by a total of 17 colored pins showing where automobile accidents have occurred in Salem since the first of the year, has been laid out by the police department and displayed in Chief Ralph Stoffer's office.

In conjunction with the map is a report listing the accidents by months. Since Jan. 1 a total of eleven mishaps have occurred on North and South Ellsworth avenues and five others on East and West State streets.

A red pin on the map indicates the scene of a fatal accident, of which there has been one so far this year; a dark green pin shows where two or more vehicles were involved in a collision; a light green pin, automobiles striking a fixed object such as a fire plug or light standard, and a black pin, where pedestrians have been struck.

BOMBERS CRASH, SIX AIRMEN DIE

Army Fliers Go to Death As Planes Collide Near Honolulu

HONOLULU, Jan. 25.—Six army airmen were killed in a night collision of two big bombers which crashed in winding sheets of flame at Luke field, military air base on Ford Island last night.

Two others aboard the planes were able to bail out in parachutes and escaped with injuries.

Army authorities ordered an immediate investigation of the crash, one of Hawaii's worst aviation disasters.

The dead: Lieut. William G. Beard, 28, San Francisco; Staff Sgt. Bernard F. Jablonowski, 33, Honolulu; Pvt. John B. Hartman, 27, Chicago; Pvt. B. E. Taylor, 26, Puyallup, Wash.; Pvt. Truman J. Gardner, 27, Olney, Ill.; Pvt. Gordon M. Parkhurst, 43, Yorkville, N. Y.

The two escaped were Reserve Lieut. Charles E. Fisher, 23, Ashville, N. C., pilot of one of the planes, and Pvt. Thomas E. Lanigan, 24, Richmond, Va., who was aboard the other.

Lieutenant Fisher twice escaped death. He barely managed to leap clear when the planes crashed. Then his parachute did not open. He plummeted toward earth, his fall unchecked. Scarcely 100 feet above the ground his chute caught on a rope extending from an oil tank to the ground and left him dangling a few yards above the field. He was unhurt except for a bruised leg and a few cuts but suffered from shock.

Private Lanigan suffered lacerations and bruises. He and Lieutenant Fisher were the only ones that were able to bail out.

The bodies of the victims were burned beyond recognition.

"The never had a chance," said one officer.

Capt. Joseph H. Twitney, army intelligence officer, said however all might have been able to bail out safely if the planes had not been flying so low as they prepared to land.

Matthews Returns From Speaking Trip

W. H. Matthews, a member of the staff of extension speakers for Ohio State University, returned Friday evening from a trip of about 1,000 miles through central and southern Ohio where he took part in the programs of the various farmers institutes.

He reports that the sub-zero weather has caused the postponement of many institutes and the closing of schools in many rural communities.

108 Pupils Graduate From Alliance High

ALLIANCE, Jan. 25.—Dr. Ralph Cooper, Hutchinson, president of Washington and Jefferson college at Washington, Pa., addressed 108 members of the January graduating class of Alliance High school at commencement exercises last night.

A red pin on the map indicates the scene of a fatal accident, of which there has been one so far this year; a dark green pin shows where two or more vehicles were involved in a collision; a light green pin, automobiles striking a fixed object such as a fire plug or light standard, and a black pin, where pedestrians have been struck.

DAVEY IS BACK FROM CAPITAL GOOD WILL VISIT

Group Introduced to President As "Boys Who Deliver the Votes"

HARMONY REIGNS, GOVERNOR ASSERTS

Remains Silent, However, On Plans For Coming Campaign

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—A contingent of prominent Ohio Democrats, led by Gov. Martin L. Davey, returned today from Washington confident harmony exists between the state and national administrations.

Arrive By Train

The group arrived by train from the nation's capital, where they visited Thursday and Friday President Roosevelt, national Democratic Chairman James Farley and Ohio members of congress.

Neither Governor Davey nor Francis W. Poulson, state Democratic chairman, was available for comment on what steps will be taken to attempt to put Ohio again in the Roosevelt win column.

A spokesman reiterated, however, the delegations statements in Washington that complete harmony exists and expressed confidence Davey and Roosevelt would be victorious.

"If every state in the union is in as good shape as Ohio from the standpoint of Democratic organization, the President should be very happy," said the governor.

"Deliver the Votes"

Davey introduced the full delegation to the President as "the boys who deliver the votes." Davey and Francis Poulson, state Democratic chairman, remained for a few minutes after the others left for "just a little talk over the campaign and mutual interests."

Assurances of success in the 1936 campaign were expressed by the governor and his companions at each of the many conferences Thursday and Friday.

Vaughn Sentenced On Forgery Count

LISBON, Jan. 25.—Theodore Vaughn of East Palestine, married and the father of a babe in arms, was sentenced by Judge W. F. Lones to serve from one to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary for forgery, five indictments being returned against him by the January grand jury.

"I'm sorry that I have to pronounce this sentence," the court said to young Vaughn. "This court sentenced you to the reformatory at Mansfield not so long ago, and we supported your application for parole. Now you are here again on a more serious charge. It would appear to the court that you would have learned a lesson."

Vaughn, neatly dressed, wearing a watch did not utter a word when the court inquired if he had anything to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced.

On a motion of the prosecuting attorney, four indictments against Vaughn for forgery have been nolle.

Attorney R. G. Oakes, appointed by the court to defend Vaughn, informed the court that Vaughn had put up the claim that he needed money to support his family, as he had no funds, and could not obtain relief.

Singer John Mills Is Dead But Brothers, Dad Carry On

Member of Noted Quartet Which Sang Before Royalty Succumbs at Home In Ohio

(By Associated Press)

BELLEFONTAINE, Jan. 25.—John Mills is dead, but his three brothers, who sang with him at a command performance before King George and Queen Mary, have teamed with their father to continue the wild, minor-key singing which skyrocketed them from street singing to fame.

A lung ailment contracted during the 1934 London trip killed John last night. He was 25, eldest member of the Negro quartet which first entertained any who would hear in the streets and barbershops of Piqua, O., four years ago.

Ill Since September

John, the basso, had not sung his barbershop rhythms through cupped hands since September, 1935. His father, John Mills, Sr., and the three brothers, Harry, Herbert and Donald, have filled engagements and their manager announced in Philadelphia they would continue to do so. There for an engagement, they planned to fly here Sunday for John's funeral.

In Piqua, small city 30 miles from here, where they lived in an abandoned gas house in their days of poverty, old friends were shocked to learn of John's death.

The four started to fame with broadcasts over the Crosley station (WLW) in Cincinnati. Their songs in Piqua's streets had attracted Mrs. A. G. Snyder's attention. She secured private engagements for them and then introduced them to Harold Greenamyer, an orchestra leader.

Lands Radio Contract

He tutored them for several months without charge, then obtained the Cincinnati radio contract for them. Later they worked their way to New York. The National Broadcasting Co. gave them a tryout and they were an immediate hit.

Radio, screen and stage bid for their engagements. They made a tour of London. John fell ill and they returned to New York. He went to a sanitarium for treatment. He returned to the home his sudden wealth had made possible for his mother, Mrs. Ethel Mills Jackson, in Bellefontaine. There he died.

Louisiana Enjoys Political Harmony

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25.—Louisiana experienced comparative political harmony today after eight bitter years which were climaxed by the killing of Senator Huey P. Long last September.

The Long candidates were swept into office by overwhelming majorities in Tuesday's primary and almost all sides extended the olive branch.

Even the New Orleans newspapers, bitter opponents of "the king-fish" and frequent objects of Long's wrath, promised cooperation with Judge Richard Leche, governor-elect.

HINTS PLOT IN ALABAMA CASE

Sheriff Says White Persons Back of Attack On Officers

(By Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 25.—Sheriff J. Street Sandlin charged today that "white persons" plotted an attack on guards by two Scottsboro case defendants in which one of the Negroes and a deputy sheriff were wounded.

Physicians said Ozle Powell, the injured Negro, had an even chance to recover from the wound of a pistol bullet Sheriff Sandlin fired into his brain.

Deputy Sheriff Edgar Blalock nursed a 3-inch knife cut in his neck, closed by 10 stitches in emergency treatment.

No Cross Words Said

The fight occurred yesterday while guards were moving Powell and a fellow prisoner, Roy Wright, by automobile from Decatur to Birmingham.

"It was all planned Thursday night," Sheriff Sandlin said, "and no Negro did the planning. We never had a cross word with any of those Negroes, and not a word had been spoken for 10 miles when suddenly they pulled knives and jumped on us."

Powell, just before he went into the operating room, said he used the knife "because Deputy Blalock."

FASCIST ARMY LOSES 763 MEN

Ethiopians Also Report 5,000 Die In Tembien Offensive

(By Associated Press)

The Fascist high command on the northern Ethiopian front reported today casualties of 763 men in the Tembien offensive in which 5,000 Ethiopians died.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander of the Italian forces in the north, set his losses at 453 Italians and 310 native recruits—a high mark in the invaders' losses since the start of the campaign.

At Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian government said its troops had encircled the city of Makale, wiped out two Italian columns and killed, captured or wounded thousands more of the enemy in engagements in the region.

The Italian report of defenders' losses reduced first statements by 3,000. Four thousand other Ethiopians have been taken prisoner, it was reported.

Premier Mussolini dispatched 1,400 more soldiers to East Africa, among them his nephew, Gennaro Moschi.

State WPA Program Working Smoothly

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—Works Progress Administration officials declared today that despite a few instances of WPA laborers "refusing to give a fair day's work for their pay" the program has progressed much more smoothly than previous relief programs.

Dr. Carl Watson, state WPA chief, asserted the WPA would abandon any projects on which "considerable persons refuse to work."

He emphasized that there had been few instances and other officials said cooperation with the WPA program was much better than with the old Civil Works or Federal Emergency relief administrations.

"We are getting it across," officials said, "that we are in earnest and that the persons we deal with must toe the mark."

SALEM DISTRICT IS 'WARMING UP'; MERCURY AT SIX

Rises After Dip to 12 Below Zero Again Last Night

WEATHERMEN EYE STORM SIGNALS

New Frigid Wave Reported Gathering In Northwest States

Temperatures climbed and snow came to some portions of Ohio today with the passing of the three-day sub-zero wave, but the respite was scheduled to be brief.

Colder weather will be back tomorrow, said the Washington weather bureau, as the tabulated list of dead exceeded 150 in the nation. In the meantime, weather bureau officials kept their fingers crossed, hoping that storm clouds gathering in the northwest states, birthplace of most of the nation's winter blasts, would be sidetracked.

The mercury dipped to 12 below again last night in the Salem district but today at noon had climbed back to the "warm" figure of six above.

Cincinnati and surrounding territory reported the first hard snow fall, which began about 2:30 a. m. With the finding of the frozen body of Thomas Miller, 35, Mansfield steel worker, late last night, the state's death toll, directly and indirectly attributed to the cold, rose to 29.

Missing Since Wednesday

Miller had been missing since the Wednesday night blizzard, when his automobile became stranded in a snowdrift on a country road. Searchers found his body crouched in a shed near the farm of Karl Blumhense.

A physician, state highway workers, ambulance crew and neighbors battled deep snow at Fisher's crossing, seven miles northeast of Cincinnati, where Foster Brewer, 18, daughter of Foster Brewer, Darke county treasurer, who was stricken with acute appendicitis. She was taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Susan M. Smith, 74, was burned to death in her home at Cleveland. Heart attacks laid to the bitter chill were blamed for the deaths of two Ashtabula men, Jay Duck, 66, and Charles Brown, 73.

Although Ohio's main highways were clear, drifts still made many secondary roads impassable. Authorities feared that any considerable amount of snow today and tonight would make the reopening of scores of rural schools impossible Monday.

Cold Wave Threat

The threat of a new cold wave tomorrow came from northwestern Canada. Weather Bureau officials said it was preceded by heavy snowfalls in Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska last night.

Buds on Elberta and Hale peach trees suffered damage, "sufficient to affect the 1936 crop seriously," reported Leon Havis of the Wooster experimental station. More hardy varieties were uninjured.

Other damage of various kinds, principally from scores of fires, made the three-day wave the most serious in the recent history of the state.

Employees of Ohio Edison Celebrate Their Safety Mark

Salem district employees of the Ohio-Edison Electric Co. enjoyed a banquet and dance last night at the company auditorium here, the affair celebrating the 1935 perfect safety record for this district. The Salem division has held the "no lost time accidents" record for eight consecutive years.

The dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. to 112 employees of the firm. A. V. Smith acted as toastmaster, introducing the speakers, C. S. MacCalla, vice president of the company, and G. H. Shaw, safety director. The speakers commended the division on its excellent record during the last eight years.

Robert H. McGrath, amateur magician, of Canton, entertained the group after the banquet. Ray Bartholomew's orchestra played for the dancing which followed.

Guests at the affair included C. S. MacCalla, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. King, Roy Zinsline, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Preston and Mr. F. Banks of Youngstown; G. H. Shaw and A. S. Richmond of Akron.

IN THE BEGINNING

Damage done by the late Sen. Long's filibuster against the appropriation bill which provided funds for administration of the social security act is being repaired as fast as legislative machinery can be moved. The sum of $42,664,500 has been approved by committee to meet the cost of the social security program until the beginning of next July.

This is a sharp reminder that a new source of expenditure has been added to the government as well as to the direct contributors to the huge funds demanded under the social security plan. It is the most expensive single legislation ever adopted by any government. In full operation it would necessitate a greater collection of money than the entire establishment of the national government uses at present. The money, obviously, will be subtracted from the part of capital available for wages.

In the beginning of the experiment with social security, the ultimate meaning of the plan necessarily is hard to discover. The fact that opposition is beginning to take form proves, however, that some of the results already are being foreseen with apprehension. A few days ago in New Jersey for instance the legislature was advised by the governor not to accept the federal plan of social security. "The state of New Jersey," he said, "should take legal action to require the federal government to return to the taxpayers the taxes which, I am competently advised, will be unconstitutionally levied and collected."

Social security enthusiasts must face the unpleasant fact that passage of the act in the session of congress which met in 1935 does not guarantee its acceptance. The circumstances under which the act was adopted, without benefit of more than a few hours of legislative debate and with scarcely any popular discussion, insured difficulty in the future. The more the country learns about the experiment to which it has been committed the more the sponsors of the experiment are bound to learn about the country. The first lesson will concern the necessity of having legislation originate at the bottom, instead of at the top. If the social security act is fundamentally sound, it will survive. Sound or unsound however, it is bound to be attacked.

DEEPLY IMPRESSED

Ohio is deeply impressed (Washington was impressed, too) with reports of the Democratic harmony pilgrimage to the seat of the federal government. Whether or not Ohio's impressions and those of Washington all have occurred in the right places is a matter of doubt.

For instance, many residents of Ohio are impressed disagreeably by Gov. Davey's recommendation of George White for appointment to the federal reserve board as a means of patching up the torn unity of the Democratic organization. It isn't particularly heartening to think of a federal reserve appointment as a plum for a political leader whose feelings have been injured. Perhaps the recommendation wasn't supposed to be taken too literally.

Ohio is impressed disagreeably, also, with the fact that Sen. Bulkley did not seem to be enthusiastic about seeing his political relatives when they came to town. Maybe the harmony idea was overplayed. Nor was Ohio favorably impressed by Gov. Davey's bland assurance that Ohio is "100 percent for Roosevelt."

That seemed to be laying it on pretty thick. On the other hand, no sensitive resident of the state could fail to be gratified by Gov. Davey's showmanship. When he got to Washington his own official limousine was waiting to whisk him to the capitol. His military aides sparkled with gold braid. A gawking innocent might have thought he was looking at a foreign dignitary on his way to the state department to present his credentials. If Washington didn't know it before, it knows now that Ohio's governor isn't a man to be taken lightly. After all, that was the purpose of the pilgrimage.

THE STARS SAY

For Sunday, January 26

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of very active conditions in the conventional vocations and avocations of the day, and while there may be unexpected change or developments in these, there is also likelihood of strife, tumult and passionate complications which may upset the promised benefits. Be calm and discreet.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an active and important year, with many benefits and advantageous changes, but these should not be permitted to be complicated by indulgence in tempestuous, impulsive and violent conduct. There is token of promotion, good news and progress, but all is dependent on calmness, deliberation and self-restraint. A child born on this day may have many practical talents and good prospects, but its tendency to violent and tempestuous conduct should be directed and disciplined in early life.

For Monday, January 27

According to the lunar transits in operation on the affairs of this day there are portents of treacherous, false and subtle conditions to be wisely confronted. In all relations there are signs of intrigue, secrecy and duplicity to be guarded against. The funds being particularly subject to all such jeopardy and fraudulent, manipulations. Vigilance at every step is admonished.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively and active year, but one beset by many perils of a fraudulent, treacherous and intriguing nature. Extreme vigilance against all these sinister conditions is advised, particularly as regards finances, investments, speculation and false promises.

A child born on this day may be clever, but crafty, subtle, impractical and given to taking losing chances.

Notable nativity: Lewis Carroll, writer.

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—I hope they are satisfied. They've finally dragged me off to the photographers. With all my worries I must sit here and simper. If they display a print of it in the cabinet outside I know a dandy caption: Droopy Trousers at Bay!

Or with my dandruff I could shake my head and they could use it for one of those end pieces in the Saturday Evening Post: Snow Scene in the Himalayas. I know now why Hal Phye wears Indian moccasins. So he can sneak up on you. Next time he yanks my head I'm going to clap my hands sharply and say, "See here now!"

He says he wants to get a shot that has verve and eclat. Well, this is not my day for verving. Or eclating either. Indeed I feel one of my dour moods coming on. Gaze right through here! Notice those grim lines. I had those before my 1929 crying spell. Right after the crash.

A fellow with a phiz like mine should have Gary Cooper for a stand in. The last time I was photographed they had me leaning on a cane looking soulful and I had to threaten to sue a patent medical concern. They were using it for a kidney pill ad. You know, before taking!

Whenever a photographer begins to lurk I know he is stumped. And he's been lurking all over the studio. Popping out trying to catch me off guard. Why can't I look sullen, if I choose? Who wants to see my face, anyway? Nobody, that's who. I told you I'd be crying in a minute. Work like a dog all your life and what do you get? Well, your photograph taken for everybody to snicker at that's what. Go on, snap me through my tears. It will be the last picture you or anyone else will take. And stop that crouching.

I think I'll tell him about standing too close to that open fire at Dick Berlin's and scorching the nap off my new brown Earl Benham overcoat. Maybe I can start him crying, too. If he got to sobbing he might stop lurking. I suppose this lump in my throat will show up like a goitre. But it doesn't matter. What does anything matter, this bright and beautiful wintry day with everybody gay—that's almost poetry—bright and beautiful day with everybody gay. Now I've lost the thread. That shows my state of mind. On top of everything I have to lose the thread. Speaking of thread, did your grandmother ever send you to the general store for a spool of Clarke's O. N. T. No. 40? I must grow calm. Suppose Lily Pons or some of the girls came in and saw me in a tantrum.

I'll straighten up, pass my hand over my face and try to look debonaire. Look doesn't that expression suggest someone? Remember Noel Coward looking out to sea in "Private Lives"? No, I don't believe I want to look like Noe-y-woe-y. I know whom I want to look like. Give up? Gene Tunney, that's whom. Using whom that way shows how near collapse I am. I can't stand the strain of all this much longer. Not with my one red coruscule.

Perhaps with my pallor I better try to look wistful. One of the Narcissus boys peering coyly into the pool wondering about the room rent or something. Once in the mirror it struck me there was a glint of the poetical. If I could just sadden up and borrow a flowing tie we might get somewhere yet. I'm skinny enough for a starved poet. Heaven knows! He's lurking again and sliding screens. Eureka! He has it. I'm just to relax and hold a book. Something litry. The book worm at ease. I'll act as though I'm just nonchalantly turning the page, rapt in reverie. Maybe I'd better be feeling my chin. And chuck in just a titter of a smile. One of those Woolworth Mona Lisa versions.

Stand back and give me air! Now he wants laughter. From grave to gay in a whisker. Laughing has never been my major charm. In the saloon days after some live wire had told a funny story I'd chuckle: "Har, har, har, I'll have another beer!" But I was never a Sunny Jim not even on pay days. Anyway how can I roar heartily with this bridge work? At best it will only be a sick grin. One of those that go with "Nay, nay, sire, I'm only slightly wounded. Just a thrust through the shoulder. I can make it to the castle!" Everybody quiet while I struggle to beam. Here it comes! I know, not much to it. Something between a jackass in tired bray and a hoot owl with the yaps. But it's the best I can offer. So cut yourself in on it—with love and kisses!

Neuralgia

FACIAL NEURALGIA is a painful and annoying affliction. It is sometimes spoken of as "tic douloureux." The symptoms are produced by a disturbance of the "trigeminal nerve." On this account the doctors refer to the ailment as "trigeminal neuralgia."

Without previous warning the sufferer is seized with violent pain in one side of the face. This attack is often described as coming "like a bolt of lightning." It lasts for several minutes and then disappears as quickly as it came. Unfortunately, the attacks recur at frequent intervals. The pain may be so severe as to require an opiate of some kind.

An attack may be brought on by washing the face, shaving, chewing, talking, or even smiling. The sufferer soon learns to avoid those particular movements that tend to bring on a spasm.

Cause Not Known

Though the actual cause of trigeminal neuralgia is now known, many plausible theories are presented. A infection in the teeth is always regarded as an important factor in producing this disease. But when once the neuralgia has made its beginning, removal of the bad teeth has no control over the symptoms. Pressure on the nerves from hardening of the blood vessels is regarded by some as a factor that must be considered.

As a rule trigeminal neuralgia occurs in persons of middle or advanced age. Only in rare instances are young adults afflicted with it. Women are more susceptible to the ailment than are men.

It is only during the past decade that the sufferer from this disorder has been offered hope of relief. Two methods of treatment are available. They are spoken of as the "conservative" and the "radical" treatments.

Inhalant Used

If the conservative method is to be used the sufferer is taught how to inhale a substance which the doctor will prescribe. It has a big name, "trichlorethylene." Twenty to thirty drops are placed on a handkerchief or piece of cloth which is held closely to the nose. The fumes are inhaled until no odor remains on the cloth.

This treatment is used by those who favor it two or three times a day. It is continued for weeks even though the pain disappears.

If this treatment does not prove to be beneficial, alcohol is injected directly into the nerve trunk. Contrary to the popular belief this is not a dangerous procedure. When successful the pain is markedly less and the attacks are no longer experienced.

The more radical treatment involves the actual removal of the root of the nerve. This is a simple operation in the hands of a surgeon who is trained and experienced in this field. It is only advised in those cases where all other forms of treatment have failed.

Don't Blame The Child

Because he could not see as he should. He could not read or study for any length of time without suffering in consequence, hence he took the natural course and rebelled. This happens with many school children. Don't blame a child for what he cannot help. Be modern and have his eyes looked after. A helpful service here for children and adults.

Sunday Services in the Churches

Invassers Meet To Discuss Plan For City Survey

Churches of Salem, in connection with the city wide religious survey, will be inaugurated Sunday afternoon, the third Sunday after Epiphany.

Complete services for tomorrow and announcements for the week are as follows:

Sunday school 9:45 a. m. (Luke 4:16-44)—Lewis Hirst, Supt.

"Jesus had a definite purpose for his life and work here upon earth. He came into the world to save sinners. Every Christian should clarify his purpose in life. His attitude must be settled. His goal and aim for life should be stated. His attitude toward the Lord's Day is to be known and followed. The church and its work must be faced with support or indifference. The Holy Bible must be studied and followed or ignored and neglected. A Christian can not avoid facing these important issues of life."

Morning worship 11 a. m. Sermon: "Macedonia Calls."

"It was in a vision that the call came to St. Paul which directed his path into what now is called Europe. There he brought the message of salvation through Christ. It was a cry for help that this servant of God heard. Every person and nation that is living outside of the knowledge and grace of the Savior can be likened to the folk in Macedonia, who begged for the light and grace of the message of Jesus Christ. Law and martial power can never make this old world what it should be. The law of love and saving message of Christ can only attain this end. Herein lies the duty and task of all Christians."

Junior Luther League 6 p. m. Sermon: "Macedonia Calls."

Senior Luther League 6:30 p. m. Topic: "Macedonia Day." Leader, Aubrey Clay.

Washingtonville Methodist Episcopal Church

The building was completed January of 1843 and dedicated by the Presiding Elder, Simon Elliot.

Among the subscriptions for the building were some in the form of labor, some in lumber, some in wood, and the rest in money.

Mrs. Ann Robbins gave $500 toward the building, which was a large amount in that day.

According to the custom of the times the men sat on one side and the women on the other while the deacons and elders had a special section for themselves. The two denominations met together until the year 1870. Then the Evangelical association, through Atty M. C. Burke of Canfield, offered to sell its share to the Methodist. Just when action was taken is not known.

A surprise was in store for the board of trustees and the official board of the church when in 1909 it was announced that Miss Elizabeth Ann Robbins of Greenford bequeathed to the church several thousand dollars. Her generous gift made possible the present edifice which was built probably in 1912. This gift also made possible the purchase of a home for Hannah Stauffer on West Market st., for a parsonage. The trustees at this time consisted of Frank Paisley, Mrs. Joseph Woods, Mrs. Edward Lewis, Mattie Roller, E. S. Freed, Nathan Minner, Mr. Herbert, David Klingensmith, J. L. Fitzpatrick, J. G. Thorpe and Rev. Mr. Clark as pastor.

The old building was sold to the village for $500 and stands now on Academy Hill. It is used for a fire house and a meeting place.

The pastors who have served in the new church are as follows: Rev. Earl Lea, (Green-springs), Sept. 1912; Rev. C. L. Cope, (Flushing), Sept. 1914; Rev. John Kerr, Sept. 1916; Rev. Lawrence Reed, 1919; Rev. J. D. Staley, 1920; Rev. C. Clair Davis, (New Concord), 1921; Rev. Edwin A. Beale, (Geneva), 1923; Rev. R. U. Ball, (DelRoy), Feb. 1926; Rev. Culp, Feb. 1928; Rev. Charles Hagar, (Gallon), Sept. 1928; Rev. B. P. Angle, (Marion), Sept. 1929; Rev. A. R. Anderson, (Damascus), Sept. 1932; Rev. Glenroy Shoupe, (Warsaw), April, 1935.

Rev. LeRoy C. Henne, the present pastor, was appointed last September.

The present members of the board include the following trustees: Mark Klingensmith, Edward Longbottom, Mrs. Francis Hartley, Walter Smith, John King and Theodore Riddle; stewards: Mrs. T. C. Riddle, Mark Klingensmith, Mrs. Samuel Tingle, Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. Donald Jackson, Mrs. Edward Longbottom, Mrs. Francis Hartley, Mrs. Rose Vignon, Mrs. Mark Klingensmith, John King, Mrs. Martha Lindsey, president of the Ladies Aid; Miss Evelyn Call, president of the Epworth league; and Harold Rohrer, superintendent of the Sunday school.

Elizabeth Ann Robbins' Efforts Recalled

(Excerpts from a history written by Joseph Thorpe August 27, 1934.)

Before there was a church in Washingtonville the people used to worship in barns and homes, many of the worshipers riding many miles on horseback over rough roads, often two on the one horse.

This was in the early thirties and continued for a number of years. Finally the worshipers, in 1839, decided to hold their services in one place and the Phillip Houts barn, now the property of F. L. Stauffer in the southern part of the village, was decided upon. Rev. Mr. Weekly, pastor of the Salem circuit which was then a part of the Pittsburgh conference, Allegheny district, of the Methodist Episcopal church, held the services in this section.

During the same year John Flitcraft, an exhorter in the church, was sent out to hold meetings in the homes of Watson Ruckman and Jacob B. Roller. These meetings were successful in arousing an interest in spiritual things. This resulted in the Greenford people asking for a society to be formed in 1841. The Greenford congregation met for over 20 years in a building known as the Center Meetinghouse. Gideon B. Keenear was then appointed with James Flitcraft helping him.

The spiritual impetus in these communities was growing rapidly under the preaching of Rev. Keenear and Rev. Flitcraft, so in June, 1842, Rev. Keenear, assisted by Rev. Mr. Black of Wellsville, held a revival meeting in Washingtonville in John Houts' barn which continued for a number of days.

These meetings resulted in the laying of the foundation of this church, which for years stood as a monument to these pioneers who sacrificed so much that the church might live. Because of a church building being erected in Washingtonville John Murray left the Salem circuit and Watson Ruckman, Hannah Ruckman, Thomas Callahan, John Robbins, Jacob Shonts, and many others left the Greenford church, and an organized society was formed on June 2, 1842.

In addition to the names given above the following were also Charter members: Mary Pipher, Mary Houts, David Fitzpatrick, Joseph Gongaware, David Harnish, Dortha Woods, John Houts, Margaret Soeey, David Houts, John Gongaware, Eliza Fitzpatrick, Benjamin Soeey, and Rebecca Robbins of Washingtonville. Many of these people had a class attendance of 100 per cent even though they had to cover many miles over rough roads.

On June 20 subscriptions were taken for the new meeting house which would be a union between the M. E. church of the Pittsburgh conference and the Evangelical association.

AWAIT TALK BY SMITH TONIGHT

Al May Announce His Views On Presidential Election

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A feeling that a history-making episode may occur tonight was current in the capital today as Alfred E. Smith traveled here to address an American Liberty league dinner and a radio audience at 10 p. m., eastern standard time.

Political leaders were excited over the possibility of a declaration of Smith's course in the presidential campaigning. They felt the speech might indicate whether or not Smith intends to take off his coat and fight the new deal in the political war to come.

No one professed to know whether such a declaration would be made. But it was generally believed Smith would carry on the broad attack on current governmental policies launched in New York last night by another former Democratic presidential candidate, John W. Davis.

Davis did not announce the role he would play in the campaign. He did not even mention the new deal by name. But he denounced centralization of government by constitutional amendment, asserted there was no room for "neutrals," and concluded by saying "when things go wrong, don't go with them."

With Smith and Davis speaking up, political speculation also was aroused by the house reputation of President Roosevelt's bonus veto, and the probability that Democrats would lead a similar revolt in the senate Monday.

It was chiefly Democrats who voted to override the veto in the house. Only 32 cast their votes to uphold the veto with 248 voting to override. Republicans cast almost as many votes to sustain, 29, with 66 to pass the bill over the veto. Interest in Smith's speech has been heightened by the silence he has maintained for many months, his action in declining an invitation to spend the night at the White House, and his failure to prepare advance copies of his address.

Not much change is reported in the condition of Mrs. L. W. House of Sandusky, mother of Mrs. H. J. Thompson of South Lincoln ave. Mrs. Thompson went to Sandusky Monday to be with her family.

Mrs. Alice Mattix of North Lincoln ave. was called to Barbours by the death of her brother, Oliver Sprankle, this morning.

WIFE IN CUSTODY by BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER XLVI
And suddenly Helen's days were full. The day wasn't long enough. The sparkle returned to her eyes, yet still a strain of music, a remembered caress, an old joke, brought a stab of pain.

Most of all, she hadn't time for her job.

Lester was despotic in his demands on her time. Her lunch hour came at twelve. Just as she was getting ready to meet him, his secretary would phone that Mr. Molyneux would meet her at one for luncheon. Helen, who had been preening in the washroom when Mrs. Ingalls' sour eye now came back into the office and began to hammer out her reports on the typewriter with two fingers. At quarter of one she went back into the washroom to freshen up again for luncheon.

At two she'd make a feint to rise. "Oh, Lester, I've been out an hour. I simply must go back."

"Nonsense, you haven't finished your dessert."

"I don't really care for dessert, Lester."

"Finish your dessert and no gobsling either. Besides, I want to drop in and see those Etruscan jars that the Anderson Galleries is auctioning off tomorrow."

"Lester, do you realize that I'm a working-girl?"

"Sure, ha ha; you're a social worker!" And Molyneux's laugh boomed so heartily that the other diners turned to stare.

"I don't think you're nearly so funny as you think you are."

"To tell you the truth, I think you're a darling."

"Well, I don't you! Now I'm going back to my honest toil."

He caught her hand. "Helen!" She stirred uneasily. "I really must go. It was a lovely lunch."

"Helen, the devil with the job. I want to talk to you."

"Some other time, Les," she said brightly. "I really must!" She rose.

"Sit down."

She sat down.

"I love you."

"Oh."

"I want to marry you."

"Oh!"

"You're no social worker, my darling."

"I know it," she admitted in a small voice.

"You're born to be a wife—my wife. You're Adam's missing rib. I've missed you all my life. I've found you now and I have no intention of letting you go. I'm not a young blade any more but I think I can still make you happy. I've loads of money. There's nothing I can't do for you. I'm being terribly honest with you, Helen. I really love you. For the first time in my life I'm thinking of what I can do for you—not what you can do for me. I can love you—oh—very, very satisfactorily."

"Don't," she whispered.

"I love you, Helen."

"Oh, don't!"

"Why? Don't you love me?"

"No, I'm sorry."

"You will," he predicted cheerfully, although he paled slightly. "Perhaps I asked you too soon. But I can wait."

"You're very, very kind, Les. I like you awfully. But I couldn't think of marrying again."

"Then let's not marry yet—not until you want to. Let me love you. You wouldn't admit it even to yourself, would you?" He smiled quizzically.

"Oh, I admit it," she whispered hoarsely.

"I could love you so, Helen! Then sensing this was not the proper attack, he veered suddenly. "I want you so, Helen. I love you. I've got to I think about you all the time. I really need you, Helen."

"Oh, no, no, don't. Don't love me. I couldn't. It would be such a waste." Her lips twitched. "I couldn't love anyone again."

"Try."

"I... can't."

"Try," he pleaded.

"All right, I'll try. But you mustn't touch me. I'll... I'll think about it. Oh, Lester, I must go!" she pleaded. "Please let me go!"

Dinners, theaters, concerts, the opera, exhibitions, teas. Molyneux knew everyone. At opening nights at the theater, they were always in the party to meet the star or the author or the producer. Helen was always so amazed when people rushed over and remembered her. She began to know scores and scores of people. Always meticulous (since her instructions from Irene) about her engagements, she now had them crowding so thick and fast that she forgot them and was filled with remorse.

Helen just had to let the job go. She couldn't get up mornings.

The Terhunes were delighted at Helen's activities. Helen brought home theater programs and printed menus and every souvenir that was given away. In the morning she'd perch on old Mrs. Terhune's bed, Cecily and the children sprawling at the foot, while she told them where she'd been and what she'd eaten. They had a lovely time of it until Fredericks came in to tear a reluctant Gracie away to get ready for school.

"He loves you, doesn't he, Helen?"

"He says he does, Ces."

"Marriage?"

"Oh, no!"

"Why not, Helen?"

"Oh, I don't know, Ces. I'm not in love for one. And then he's old."

"Nonsense. He's the same age as I am. We were in dancing school together."

"Oh, Ces! Impossible. He's gray."

"So am I."

"You're young."

"I'm forty-nine and a half, and so is Lester. And if you think I'm young (oh, and thank you!) then he's younger!"

They were in Helen's room. Helen was still in bed, her rumpled blonde hair and pink cheeks giving her an almost childlike look. Cecily lay in red lounging pajamas sat (tailor-fashion) at the foot.

Helen shook her head.

"You'd be silly not to marry him, Nellie."

Helen started. "Why did you call me that?"

"I don't know. It just slipped out."

"For a moment I thought it was Dirk talking. He always called me that."

"Helen, if Dirk were alive, I know he'd advise you to marry Lester. After all, you're so young—the children like him. He'll be a wonderful father to them."

Helen sighed. "Yes, he would. But do you think Dirk would have advised me to marry someone I don't love?"

"I don't know. Dirk had a practical side, too. Lester's awfully rich, Helen."

"I don't care about his money, Ces."

"I know, dear, but he's a man. He's offering you love." Cecily's allow face flashed. "You know better than I do what it means. I only know this, Helen. If I could live my life over again, I'd marry the first man who asked me. Dogs live such a short time comparatively. You love one—and it dies!"

"Ces, love is like that, too. Didn't my love last only a comparatively short time?"

"Then try again," Cecily urged hoarsely. "I always find a new pet when one dies." She rose abruptly and left the room.

Belle said, "Oh, Helen, Guy and I are crazy about him. He's so charming, so mellow. You make a marvelous couple. Helen, has he asked you to marry him yet?"

"Yes."

"Darling!"

"But I haven't accepted him."

"For heaven's sake, Helen!"

"I don't love him, Belle."

"Oh, Helen, you've had romantic love. I think you can have such a sensible love affair with Lester."

"Would you change your love for Guy for a sensible love affair?"

"I... can't."

"Try," he pleaded.

"All right, I'll try. But you mustn't touch me. I'll... I'll think about it. Oh, Lester, I must go!" she pleaded. "Please let me go!"

They had a lovely time of it until Fredericks came in to tear a reluctant Gracie away to get ready for school.

"He loves you, doesn't he, Helen?"

tell me, why are you weeping? His voice was so deep and so low that she found herself telling all about Anastasia. Walter Words poured from her in tears. Since the night she told Cecily she had never mentioned the story. But now it seemed right, fitting to tell Lester. Somehow the back of her mind was thought that by telling him would make him understand she could not marry him.

The sun sank into the sky ball of blood. The air grew cool, wintry. He never interrupted. She began to fall softly across the sofa. She felt better and she stopped weeping.

He said: "If we got married now, we could go east to Boston and then to the Far East. I've been. That would be interesting, don't you think?"

When they arrived at the house, two hours later for Helen and Lester were engaged. "We'll be married," Helen proclaimed blithely, glowing. "I'm for an immediate wedding myself."

"Oh, no, Lester. I couldn't wait till after Christmas."

"Oh, Helen," Cecily exclaimed. "What grand news! I'm thrilled!"

It did Helen's heart good to hear her joy. She was so glad to have brought them some happiness, carry them over the dog-days. August that brought in its such bitter memories. She had had time to analyze her own feelings.

In Lester's arms she experienced a feeling of terror. He so... so stout, so solid! He had been lean, flat, muscular. Her talk was padded solidly with fat. Oh, God, she mustn't! She must make comparisons! She must get! The past was dead. The God, it was dead! The future before her to live, to enjoy.

Southwest Maps Program to Clean Up Badlands

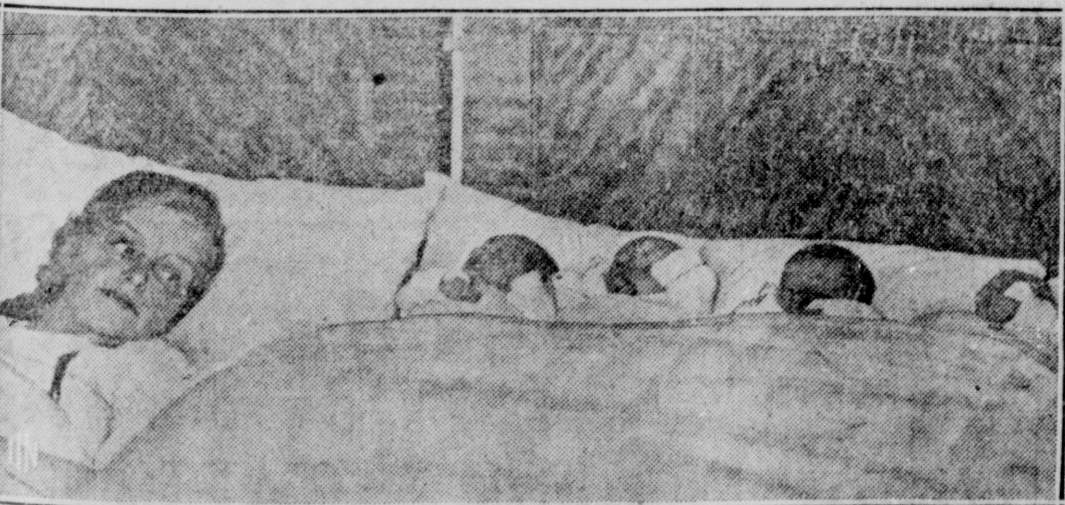

Legislatures of seven western states now have under consideration a program designed to close the badlands of the southwest to the desperadoes who at various times during their criminal careers have taken refuge there. At a recent conference of state and civic authorities at Tulsa, Okla., it was proposed that state lines be leveled to allow authorities of one state to pursue a criminal into another state and return with him without process of extradition. It is believed that this compact would materially speed up justice and prevent criminals from making contacts with fixers and henchmen who delay the course of the law. It would also materially aid G-men in their law enforcement activities under J. Edgar Hoover. # Palestine Halts Quakers, 33 To 27, To Remain Undeclared

Bulldogs One Of Few Unbeaten Quintets In Northeastern District

Mainstay of Quakers, Eddie Pukalski, Performs At His Best Against Palestine; Max Lutsch Absent From Lineup

Coach Perry Van Hynning's East Palestine Bulldogs remain today as one of the few undefeated high school basketball teams in the northeastern Ohio district after making the Salem High Quakers their sixth straight victim, 33 to 27, in a Columbus county contest at the Adamson clubhouse in East Palestine last night.

By continuing their march down victory trail, the Bulldogs maintained their position in the fore of the county championship race but from now on they will be a marked team to all future opponents.

Their qualifications for a place in the unbeaten ranks are few, since they have yet to meet a highly rated team on a foreign floor, and their chances of remaining among the undefeated are small. They face a fairly strong Sebring High quintet at Sebring tonight and then next week run into stiffer opposition against Struthers.

Pukalski Stars
The mainstay of the Quaker quintet and its lone senior, Eddie Pukalski, performed at his best last night, scoring 16 points, but his individual exhibition was not quite enough to keep the Quakers in the win column.

The Red and Black cagers, playing without the services of their regular center, Max Lutsch, who is on the sick list, were apparently bothered by the small and crowded East Palestine floor. Pukalski was the only one of the Quakers who was up to par and able to hit the basket with any accuracy.

Kenneth Shears, who has averaged nine points a game up until last night, tallied but three points, all on fouls.
Substituting for Lutsch, Tom Schaeffer, freshman center, turned in a creditable performance but it was obvious that the Quakers missed the services of their regular tip-off man.

Take Lead
The Bulldogs jumped to a six-point lead mid-way in the first period and it was only through the foul shooting of Pukalski that the Quakers were able to cut Pale-

MOUNT RALLIES TO WIN FOURTH OHIO LOOP TILT

Purple Cagers Down Otterbein, 37 to 33, With Final Spurt

A flashy Marietta college quintet held the undisputed lead in the Ohio conference basketball race today after trouncing Wittenberg, 33 to 32.

The Lutherans, also undefeated in the conference when the game started, soon found themselves bewildered by Marietta's speed and skill with the ball. After the first 10 minutes of play Marietta was ahead, 21 to 6, and at the half the gap had widened, 34-13.

Battle Fiercely
Wittenberg battled fiercely from start to finish and succeeded in slowing Marietta for some time in the second half. Donahue, of Wittenberg, made 14 points. Whiting and Magee of Marietta made 15 and 12, respectively. Both teams lost two players on personals in the final period. The game was played at Marietta.

Otterbein came away from Alliance with its first Ohio conference defeat in three starts. Mount Union forged ahead in the last six minutes and won, 37 to 33, for its fourth victory in five conference tilts and its sixth consecutive victory.

Schultz, Weaver and Swoopes of Mount Union scored nine points apiece, while Rutter, Loucks and Lane of Otterbein caged 40 apiece.

Bowling Green's sharpshooters put on a sensational second-half rally and defeated Ohio Northern, 40 to 39, at Bowling Green. Weber, Bowling Green forward who scored 18 points, dropped the winning basket from mid-floor. Northern was ahead, 22 to 12, at the intermission.

Xavier Wins
Xavier defeated the University of Tennessee, 39 to 20, by getting the jump early in the game at Cincinnati and capitalizing on the southeastern conference team's wild passing. The Musketeers were on the big end of the 18-10 halftime score.

The Ohio College of Chiropractic five edged Thiel college of Pennsylvania, 21 to 18, at Cleveland. A second-half rally did the trick.

The Cedarville-Rio Grande game was postponed until Monday because of bad weather. The Kenyon-Capital game also was postponed. It will be played tonight.

BIG ENTRY FEE STOPS GOLFERS

Only ySmall Field In San Francisco Match Play Open Tournament

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—A $25 entry fee, largest ever required for an open golf tournament in the west, whittled the field in the San Francisco match play open to 10 today.

Only a few local pros and amateurs were willing to pay the fee to test their shots against the nation's leading golfer, paced by the defending champion, Harold McSpaden, former Kansas City pro.

Reduce Field
The field will be reduced to eight by a 36-hole qualifying round at Lake Merced links.

Survivors of medal play today will swing into 18-hole match play rounds, morning and afternoon Sunday, with the final's meeting over the 36-hole route Monday.

A purse of $5,025, largest for any western tournament this season, was assured. The winner will receive about $1,700.

Favorites included Ky Laffoon, who chalked up a practice round of 66 over the par 72 course; Walter Hagen Wiffy Cox, Olin Dutra, Craig Wood, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith and Wild Bill Mehlhorn.

Potters Down Toronto High

EAST LIVERPOOL, Jan. 25.—Toronto High school's cage team was blasted from the unbeaten ranks here last night when the East Liverpool Potters sparked their down river opponents, 46 to 32.

The Potters had a decided advantage in every period and used a score of substitutes in the final quarter. Mackey and Proctor led the Liverpool scoring with 13 and 12 points, respectively.

HARLOW AFTER SCORE RECORD

Chicago Cager has Opportunity To Set New Big Ten Mark

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Bill Harlow, who shares with Jay Berwanger the job of providing the University of Chicago with a measure of athletic glory, will proceed with his campaign for a new Big Ten basketball individual scoring record tonight against Northwestern.

Maroon teams haven't been able to win any championships lately, but between Berwanger, All-America gridiron great and topnotch track performer, and Harlow, a star of the first magnitude in basketball and baseball, Chicago has not been completely shut out.

Harlow won the individual scoring title last season, and this season appears well on his way to another. If he maintains his present pace he will surpass the all-time high scoring record of 167 points established by Joe Reiff of Northwestern in 1932.

Chicago, which has not won a game in conference competition in spite of Harlow's spectacular efforts, will tackle Northwestern at Evanston. Maroon supporters hope Harlow will match his performance of 1934, when he scored 22 points to lead Chicago to a surprise 36 to 34 victory over the Wildcats.

Ohio State plays at Pennsylvania in a non-conference game.

Fast Sprinters In Santa Anita Event

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—Ten fast sprinters, eight eligible for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, were entered in the $5,000 San Vicente handicap at Santa Anita today.

Post-time favorite was Singing Wood, with today's six furlong distance more to his liking than the mile event he lost a week ago. The Mrs. John Hay Whitney entry carries the same 126 pounds he carried before, however.

Rosemont, William Dupont's handicap candidate, was another favorite entry, but Trainer R. E. Handlen may scratch him.

Jaw Injury Forces Boxer to Withdraw

CINCINNATI, Jan. 25.—Nate Bartel, local heavyweight boxer scheduled to meet Joe Mueller, another local heavyweight, in the eight-round feature of a boxing program Wednesday night, was forced to withdraw from the assignment today.

Dr. Wesley Furste, physician for the Cincinnati boxing commission, examined Bartel and found him suffering from the recurrence of an old jaw injury. He lost a decision to Mueller several weeks ago, after draping him across the ropes in the first round with several haymakers.

No Contest

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 25.—Tony Spiegel of Pittsburgh and Ray Lile of Akron were disqualified for not trying and their 10-round main bout called no contest last night.

Columbiana Wins Over Lisbon Hi

LISBON, Jan. 25.—Lisbon High school cagers dropped further into their slump here last night when they lost out to Columbiana High, 41 to 23.

The county seat team played on even terms with Columbiana in the first period but was outscored in each of the following quarters.

In the reserve game, the Columbiana lads made it a perfect night by trouncing Lisbon, 26 to 17.

Goshen Quintets, Down Fairfield

COLUMBIANA, Jan. 25.—Goshen High school basketball teams won both games over Fairfield High quintets here last night.

The Goshen boys triumphed over Fairfield lads, 32 to 10 while the lassies from the Damascus school downed Fairfield girls, 29 to 12.

Bettler was outstanding in the boys' game, while Schwartzhoff and Burton starred for the Goshen girls.

Both boys' and girls' teams will play Milton at Milton tonight.

Good 6-room house. Brick veneered. Hard wood. Practically new. Paved street and nice location. $4,500.

Theater Attractions

Elizabeth Allen and Ronald Colman as Lucie Manette and Sidney Carton in "The Tale of Two Cities" to be presented at the State Sunday and Monday.

Charles Dickens' novel, "A Tale of Two Cities," comes to the State theater Sunday and Monday with Ronald Colman in the leading role.

Two years in the making, this picture follows the novel closely and has a large supporting cast that includes Elizabeth Allen, Edna May Oliver, Reginald Owen, Basil Rathbone, Blanche Yurka, Henry B. Walthall, Donald Woods, Isabel Jewell, Tully Marshall and H. B. Warner.

Included in the group is Lucie's father, Dr. Manette, who is aided in his escape from prison by Madame Defarge. It is Madame Defarge who is instrumental in framing Darnay and sending him to prison to die on the guillotine. The end finds Sidney Carton performing the famous sacrifice of the story and proving to himself that he is doing something worthwhile at last.

Ah Wilderness!

Tonight is the last opportunity to see "Ah Wilderness!" at the State. This film taken from the play by Eugene O'Neill has Wallace Berry, Lionel Barrymore, Cecilia Parker, Eric Linden and Aline MacMahon in the cast.

Tuesday and Wednesday the comedy, "If You Could Only Cook," is scheduled for the State theater. Herbert Marshall, Joan Arthur and Leo Carrillo are featured. The plot of the story concerns Marshall, a bored millionaire, and Miss Arthur, a member of the unemployed, who meet on a park bench. Taking him for a member of the jobless army, Miss Arthur invites him to pose as her husband and answer an advertisement for married couple to serve as butler and cook. On the spur of the moment he accepts and they get the job.

Leo Carrillo is the big-shot racketeer who employs them. With the clever plot and the well chosen cast this comedy should prove very entertaining.

Frank Buck's new picture of the jungles, entitled "Fur and Claw," will be shown Thursday only at the State.

Opera Star in Film

"Rosa of the Rancho," featuring the opera star, Gladys Swarthout, comes to the State Friday and Saturday. John Boles, Charles Bickford and Grace Bradley complete the supporting cast.

Sunday the Grand presents a double feature program. Edward Everett Horton in "His Night Out" will be one of the films and the other, "The Lone Wolf Returns," with Melvyn Douglas, Gail Patrick and Tala Birell in the starring cast.

Tonight at the Grand is the last showing of "The Singing Vagabond" starring Gene Autry.
